Dear Mountain Oak School Community,

More than once this year, the success of Mountain Oak School has been measured by the rosy cheeks of the students. The liveliness of an education that keeps children moving inwardly and moving outwardly is incomparable. As I take parents to the classrooms during 'Walk Through the Grades' it is inspiring to see students moving their voices in speech or song, moving their bodies in morning movement, moving their minds in mental math or recall. It is important in the daily lives of children that there is a quality of natural breathing throughout the day. As a student is learning new academic material, listening to a legend, learning a song, movement or verse, she is breathing in all the wonder of the new experience. When a student is creating a drawing, sharing a report, painting a picture or singing a song he is breathing out the beauty that lives inside. In-breath and out-breath throughout the day is the cause of rosy cheeks. Rosy cheeks means a heart is beating, deep breaths are happening, joy and happiness are present. I appreciate and take seriously the measure of the overall health of our students by the color in their cheeks.

Warmly,

Cindy Roe
